In the Spring semester of 2019 the College of Architecture offers students the opportunity to spend a full semester living and studying in Rome. The coursework is tailored to both take advantage of the Eternal City's great sites and to meet curricular needs of students. The program will include a new service-learning project, providing the opportunity to engage with local communities in Italy though projects.

Students will engage with leading architects and scholars in Rome through guest lectures, site visits, and walks. Past lecturers have included:

• Tom Rankin, Architect and expert on sustainable cities; President of Studio Rome.
• Luca Galofaro, Architect and teaches architectural theory the "La Sapienza" University, Rome
• Beatrice Bruscoli, Ph.D., Architect

“Yes, I have finally arrived to this Capital of the World! I now see all the dreams of my youth coming to life... Only in Rome is it possible to understand Rome.”

– Johann Wolfgang von Goethe

The architecture and urban spaces of Rome are unique unto their context of Western Europe. Encountering the art, architecture, and urban forms is an immensely enriching experience with particularly beneficial value for the education of an architect. From the profound sculptures of Bernini to the bombastic spaces of modern Zaha Hadid and Renzo Piano, as a student you will explore the connections between the architectures of the past and today and everything in-between. Your experiences will go beyond that of an ordinary visitor of Rome. The central approach to the program is to study architecture through a focused experience of exposure, investigation, and exploration.

The selection of students will be decided by overall OU GPA, Studio GPA, and the level of maturity that the applicant has displayed during their time in the College of Architecture.
